In the music world, “unplugged” means to make music without the use of amplifier: simple, pure, and no electronics. For Hannes Reeh, “unplugged” stands for four single-variety wines – wines that express “Andauer pure and natural” – no influence of the fermentation, no added yeasts or enzymes, no cosmetics to cover up the wines. These wines are authentic. And in particularly good years, they are bottled even without undergoing filtration.

How to relax after a strenuous day is up to you. Hannes Reeh does it this way: he sits down in the vineyard with a glass of fine and spicy Unplugged Merlot, and listens to nature. It works even if you don't have any vines on your doorstep.
